HURRYING CENSUS WORK

Director Merriam Explains What Has Been Accomplished.

The Department to Move into the New Building January 1, When the Actual Collection of Information Will Begin—The Labor of Examination—Enormous Correspondence.

At the offices of the Census Bureau today it was announced by Director Merriam that the new building would be ready for occupancy on January 1, and that the actual work of beginning the taking of the census would commence on that date.

The department is working energetically in preparing for its great task. During the past six months, Director Merriam has been busy in the department, but he has been thoroughly in hand. Arrangements have been completed for a new and commodious building, which will be ready for occupancy on January 1; 3,000 persons have been examined for clerical positions, and 1,400 have been placed on the eligible list. These examinations were held in this city, in the East, Cincinnati, and Chicago, and one is now being conducted at St. Paul, which will continue until the first of the year. It is expected by the Director that by January 1 the list of eligibles will contain 1,800 names.

The work now being done has been apportioned to 300 supervisors who at present are adding the bureau in procuring necessary preparatory information and in circulating data among the people to educate them to what the bureau expects from them in the taking of the census. The correspondence of the bureau is enormous, for almost every State official in the United States has been, or will be, communicated with, besides many thousands of other persons.

To systematize the labor of the bureau the United States has been divided into districts for the convenience and accuracy of the 55,000 enumerators who will begin the active work of taking the census under the supervision of the 300 supervisors on January 1, and this work will be pushed with every possible speed consistent with correctness.

A report has just been made by the statisticians of the bureau to the Assistant Director which shows that the work done to date has been entirely satisfactory to the bureau, and that the plans and scope of the work to be accomplished is well advanced.

To keep himself thoroughly conversant with the details of the bureau, the Director insists that each division shall render reports to him at regular intervals. This enables him to grasp at a glance the situation and condition of the work being performed in each division.

Under the act of Congress the census for population, vital statistics, agriculture, and manufacturing must be completed and ready for the use of the public within a period of two years.

The time is so short that the bureau will confine its entire time to this branch of the census before touching upon anything else.

Director Merriam said today that he will require the entire two years to comply with the requirements of the law.

After this census has been turned over to the public the Census Bureau will devote its time to the collection of the other information required by the act of Congress, which includes the insane, feeble-minded, deaf, dumb, and blind; to crime, pauperism, and benevolence, including prisoners, paupers, juvenile delinquents, and inmates of reformatory and penitentiary institutions; to deaths and births in registration areas; to social statistics of cities; to public indebtedness, valuation, taxation, and expenditures; to religious bodies; to electric light and power, telegraph, and telephone business; to transportation by water, express business, and street railways; to mines, mining, and minerals; and the production and value thereof, including gold, in divisions of placer and vein, and silver mines, and the number of men employed, the average daily wage, average working time, and average output in the various branches and afforementioned divisions of the mining industry.

To collect this vast fund of information the bureau has organized a vast system of enumerators, and the information will be prepared by the bureau, and 100,000,000 cards for transferring to tabulating machines will be required.

The details of the census are to be so exhaustive that it has been deemed necessary by the bureau to institute a campaign of education as a preparation for the people of what the bureau will expect of them. Newspapers, trades journals, and societies have been asked to co-operate with the bureau in making plain the duties of the citizen to the bureau, and many circulars have been sent out for distribution to assist in this campaign of instruction.

Owing to the ignorance of many people the bureau has called special attention to the fact that no information gathered by census officials will be disclosed to private individuals or assessors, or tax collectors, or to rivals in business.

It will be used and published impersonally, never in connection with the name of the person or corporation to whom it relates, or by whom it may be given.

The penalty for any such disclosure on the part of officials is severe. There are also penalties for punishing persons who willfully neglect or refuse to give information when called upon to do so.

Another circular says that all farmers are urged to make written records of their farm operations during the year 1930, so that when the enumerator calls next June the information to be gathered by him will be at hand.

The law requires for each farm the total acreage; acres improved; acres unplowed; acres irrigated; number of acres owned by occupant; number of acres leased or rented by occupant; color of occupant; value of whole farm; value of buildings and permanent improvements; value of all machinery, implements, vehicles, etc.; thereon; acreage and quantity of crops raised in 1929; number and value on hand June 1, 1929; quantity and value made in 1929.

Business in Christianity.

The State Department has been advised by Consul Bordewich, of Christianity, that the money market there continues very close, and many failures have occurred among business men. He states that it would seem advisable for American firms doing business with importers in his district to be cautious. Of course, there are a great many solid firms, but it is entirely safe to deal, but all new connections should be investigated.

REBUKED FROM THE STAGE.

An Actress Publicly Resents Misconduct in a Box.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Miss Julia Arthur, who, with her company, is now playing in "More Than Queen" at the Broadway theatre, created a sensation last night by ringing down the curtain in the middle of the fourth act. As soon as the curtain reached the stage, Miss Arthur stepped back it and began to address the audience. She said that throughout the performance she and the members of the company had been greatly annoyed by loud talking in one of the boxes. She pointed to box three, and declared that the two men and the two women who were seated therein, in evening dress, were the offenders. She added that she had asked the stage manager to ring down the curtain in the middle of the third act, but he had prevailed upon her to finish the act, in the hope that the disturbance would cease.

When Miss Arthur completed her speech the audience applauded, and then, turning their attention to those in the boxes, began hissing vigorously. The four occupants of the boxes hastily arose and left the theatre in confusion. Then Miss Arthur thanked the audience, the curtain rose again, and the play was resumed.

Discharged by the Cramps.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 9.—William Cramp, a cousin of Charles H. Cramp, the president of the Cramp Ship and Engine Building Company, and who has been with the company for fifty years, serving in various capacities, has retired from the service of the company. Although he is seventy years old, his retirement comes in the nature of a surprise to himself and many of those associated with him. He was one of the most expert dock masters in this country. The first intimation that he had of the firm's desire that he sever his connection with it came last night, when he received a note saying that his services would be no longer required.

GOSSIP OF THE GRIDIRON.

Two halves of ten minutes each were played yesterday by the Georgetown team. During that time the ball was as often in the varsity's territory as it was in the scrubs'. The varsity made a touchdown in each half, the first by a trick play and the second by going through the line. During the latter part of the practice the line did the first team go to pieces. Time after time the scrubs went through Georgetown's line for 6 and 7-yard gains, and only a fumble saved the varsity from being scored against. Captain Long's shoulder is nearly well, and for the first time in five days he was out on the field for practice yesterday.

In their practice yesterday afternoon the Young Men's Christian Association team confined themselves almost entirely to defensive work. The second team had the ball nearly all of the time. They endeavored to advance the ball first on end and then by line plays, but were never entirely successful. The association's team is now in excellent condition, and does not expect to have any trouble in defeating the Druid Athletic Club of Baltimore when they line up against them Saturday.

Georgetown has not been able to secure a name for Saturday afternoon. Last night Manager Smith wrote to the Mount St. Mary's College, but as their schedule is made up for the season it is hardly probable that they will come to Washington.

Gallaudet is trying to get the Georgetown team to play them Saturday. The players on the varsity team are anxious to meet the Kendallians again. The student body of the university will not permit the match.
